Background

A leading Asian low-cost airline faced constant profit margin pressures to deliver the lowest air fares in a very competitive market. Online fraud was such a constant occurrence that not only impacted their profitability, but consumers became concerned with credit card security on the airline's website.

Challenge

The airline's e-ticket revenue was growing rapidly, as was their fraud problem — losing over $100K each month. The airline had a 4-member fraud team screening 2,500 bookings per day. They lacked a thorough and systematic way to accurately assess the riskiness of each booking that came through their website.

Solution

The Asian airline utilized Decision Manager and Performance Monitoring and began screening bookings in real-time. With the help of the CyberSource Managed Risk Analyst, the airline analyzed their historical transactions to understand fraud patterns for their business. Using Decision Manager's risk score and creating automated screening rules, the airline was able to review only those truly suspicious bookings, eliminating stressful overtime by its reviewers.

As a result of CyberSource's fraud management solution, the airline's fraud rate dropped to only 0.002% in just two months, and consumer confidence with the airline's website was restored.
